

POSITIVELY TORAH

Step Inside the Art – Family Discussion

Chapter 12 – Leadership

“Step Inside the Art” is a recurring activity that allows learners to slow down, look closely at artistic creations, step inside the scenes depicted, and see biblical texts in fresh and exciting ways. The artwork presented is intended to enhance our understanding of positive character strengths through Torah.

Throughout the year, you will receive “Step Inside the Art” activities to discuss with your child.

Leadership: You organize groups to work toward goals and inspire others to do their best.

Here is the Step Inside the Art your child discussed as they learned about Moses and the superpower of Leadership.

To begin a meaningful conversation with your child, ask them what they discussed with their group and to share their thoughts about the art. Then it is your turn to look at the art and respond to the questions.

Thank you for partnering in building your child’s understanding and appreciation of Torah and positive character strengths.

POSITIVELY TORAH

- How does Moses's approach to judging disputes make it more difficult for him to solve the Israelites' problems?
- Why do you think Moses is trying to do everything by himself?
- What do you think Moses is thinking when he hears Jethro's questions?
- What makes Jethro the perfect mentor for Moses?
